Goodstrike Buffalo Art

Albrea Accent

For mother-daughter Laurie Hansen and Rachelle Albrecht, their artistic abilities and life experiences in their nurturing professions as a nurse midwife and as an educator, have brought them to the creation of comforting and healing throws and cocoons. Though not formally trained in the art of fiber, their artistic abilities speak for themselves in their handmade and high quality works of care. One of the goals of the designers is to help the user calm themselves in a simple and natural way. Using trapped air for warmth, it also creates a rich texture that is beautiful for your home décor.

Mosart, Inc.

As an artist, Bruce M. Schuettinger's fine art furniture embodies the calculated spontaneous placement of elements within the decorative and structural surfaces of his furniture to create an emotion of surprise with his use of irregular seemingly impulsive movement. All the while; producing a functional and extremely well-crafted piece of functional art. His work is often highly sculptural in its three-dimensional presence as well as painterly in its application of two-dimensional wood and metal elements. Bruce M. Schuettinger PA-AIC ISFD is a multi-award winning artist that is represented by Artblend www.artblend.com and Aldo Castillo Gallery www.aldocastillogallery.com. We offer design services and welcome commissions.

I am a rustic furniture builder carver for the last 20 years. I work with all wood, birch bark, twigs logs, My pieces are inspired by classic designs of fine furniture of yesteryear. My works are original custom designs. I have sold and exhibited throughout the United States. Born in Germany I immigrated to US at 9 months of age and attended MIT then to become an emergency physician. I adventure widely, inspired by the outdoors. I wanted to create furniture and functional and decorative art to bring the outdoors and natural environment into the home. My designs include complex cabinetry, tables, mirrors, chairs to large carvings.

How Kola Furniture By Tim Lozier

Furniture. When Tim hears that word, he thinks of creativity. He first started making furniture twenty years ago, building Thomas Molesworth reproductions. To this day, the Molesworth style remains the most popular type of furniture he builds. In 1998 he started his own business, How Kola Furniture and began putting his spin on Molesworth designs. This has given Tim a great deal of creative freedom and plenty of ideas to upgrade his style of furniture.

Lou Quallenberg Studios

Lou Quallenberg Studios creates a unique, style of award winning, mesquite furniture and art pieces that truly captures the essence of the Texas Hill Country and the Wild West. Locally sourced, reclaimed or sustainably harvested the wood has a spirit of it's own that helps guide in the decision process of when, where and how to use it. The pieces are truly one of a kind treasures, created from this gnarly, hard wood full of cracks, crevices and character that might otherwise end up in the BarBQ burn pile.

JASON SHARP, CRAFTSMAN IN WOOD My work as a woodworker is deeply seated in my love for the natural world. From the curves of a coastal white pine to the swirling eddies of flowing rivers, my work strives to mimic the lines of nature. I start by allowing the individuality of the wood to speak to me, and from that place each piece is born. It all started in my grandfather's woodworking shop. He was an engineer, wood worker and all around master of my attention. In the dark world of my grandparent's basement, he and I built rubber band guns, ice fishing sleds, and a love for the craft of woodworking. Since those days in my grandfather's workshop I have continued to develop my skills through a combination of self teaching and working with master craftsmen.

Fenceline We

Ranchers and cowboys have built fences since barb wire was introduced to the prairies 145 years ago. To these men, building fence was their work of art. Beauty and ruggedness is seen in the various woods they used to support these old fence lines, wood that's notched with character, strong and enduring. Duane started FencelineWesternArt in December, 2018 with the desire to turn this historic wood into another work of art that will last many more generations.
